The content of the website <https://www.lucidao.com/>, any references made within it as well as any accompanying documentation (together the “Website”) are of purely informational nature. In particular, none of the information accessible on the Website shall be understood as advice, nor does anybody warrant the actuality and accuracy of the information on the Website.

Due to the fully decentralization of the LUCIDAO smart contracts, there is no operating entity or person involved in any (further) developments made by the LUCIDAO, nor has someone any influence on its technical functionalities once deployed. Therefore, any use of 'we', 'our' etc. within the Website or the accompanying documentation is referring to the LUCIDAO smart contract as deployed. The same applies in cases where there is no pronoun.

The LUCIDAO smart contracts, respectively the LUCIDAO is a DeFi application and therefore can easily be integrated into third-party projects and/or applications. The same applies to the LCD token. Any reference to such an integration or use-case within the Website is of informational purpose only.
